

Three Faces of

GANDHIAN NONVIOLENCE

Presented By
Karuna Mantena

Robert P. Benedict Lectures in the History of Political Philosophy

Lecture 1: Critique of Civilization

10/28 4:00PM-6:00PM CGS 527, 871 Commonwealth Avenue, Boston, MA

Lecture 2: Hazards of Action

10/29 4:00PM-6:00PM CGS 129, 871 Commonwealth Avenue, Boston, MA

Lecture 3: Means and Ends of Swaraj

10/30 4:00PM-6:00PM Kenmore Room, 1 Silber Way, Boston, MA

Reception

10/30 6:00PM-7:30PM Kenmore Room, 1 Silber Way, Boston, MA

Karuna Mantena is Professor of Political Science at Columbia University and co-director of the International Conference for the Study of Political Thought (CSPT). She is the author of Alibis of Empire: Henry Maine and the Ends of Liberal Imperialism (2010), which analyzed the transformation of nineteenth-century British imperial ideology. She has recently published articles on Gandhi's political realism, the nonviolence of Martin Luther King, and the theory and practice of nonviolence in the 20th century. She is currently finishing a book on Gandhi and the politics of nonviolence.

All are welcome! Space is handicap accessible

More information can be found on the event website at: sites.bu.edu/benedict

Please direct questions to Rebecca Leiby (Boston University) at rleiby@bu.edu