

Boston University is doing a research study to develop a new program to help adult siblings work with their families and brother or sister on the autism spectrum to plan for the future. We are looking for adult siblings to help us develop this new program. Some participants will have 6 or 7 internet-based individual meetings with a program facilitator and other participants will view online materials.

If you are interested in hearing more about the study, please fill out the form below.

By filling out this form, I agree to let a member of the research team at Boston University contact me with more information about the study.
