

Hothouse Productions is gearing up for Spring 2022

For decades, Hothouse students have written, produced, shot and edited outstanding videos for nonprofit and for-profit clients.

While Hothouse is open to both undergraduate and graduate students, you must apply for admittance. Twelve students will be accepted each semester. Three teams, each with four students, will deliver a completed video by the end of the semester.

Requirements:

Undergrad Prereq: COM FT325 & COM FT353. 3.0 COM GPA.

Grad Prereq: COM FT707 & COM FT727. 3.2 COM GPA.

Students should also have taken additional production courses in lighting, editing, directing, and videography.

To be considered for Hothouse Productions, you must email a brief letter (subject heading: Hothouse Application) to Professor Sheila Sitomer (ssitomer@bu.edu) no later than Monday, November 15, 2021. The letter must include:

- Your name, whether you are an undergrad or graduate student and what year/semester you currently are in, contact info (email address and phone number), and BU ID#.
- Which role(s) you want to apply for. Each team will need a producer, writer/associate producer, videographer, and editor. Teams might decide to have overlapping roles, so please list roles you're applying for in preference.
- What producing, writing, production and management skills you'd bring to Hothouse.
- Why you'd like to take the class.
- Share links which show your production skills in the role(s) you're applying for.
- Mention additional production classes (editing, videography, sound, etc.) you've taken, and provide the name of the professor who taught each class.

You do not register for this class during registration. We will register you if you are accepted. You should register for another class, in case you are not accepted into Hothouse. If you are accepted, you will drop that other class.

Thank you,
Department of Film and Television
College of Communication