

Medical Assistants' Scope of Practice

In a vast majority of states, medical assistants may perform basic clinical procedures under the direct supervision of a licensed medical practitioner (e.g., physician, osteopath, podiatrist, and in some cases physician assistants or nurse practitioners). However, the legal framework governing the delegation of clinical tasks to unlicensed assistive personnel varies greatly from state to state.

While most states still don't have laws or regulations specifically addressing the practice of medical assisting, the number of states with such laws has grown in recent years. Many states that do not address medical assisting by name nevertheless have statutes or rules acknowledging a licensed practitioner's authority to delegate clinical tasks to an unlicensed assistant, as long as certain conditions are met.

State laws affecting the scope of medical assisting practice generally fall into one of three categories:

- Laws that expressly recognize the practice of medical assisting and list some of the specific clinical functions that properly qualified medical assistants may perform;
- Provisions in state practice acts that preserve the right of licensed practitioners to delegate basic clinical tasks to unlicensed assistants or exempt such assistants' performance of delegated tasks from legal definitions of unauthorized practice; or
- Laws governing licensed practitioners of the healing arts that are totally silent in regards to the delegation of clinical tasks to unlicensed personnel.

Chart Summary

- 13 states expressly recognize medical assistants (Arizona, Arkansas, California, Florida, Georgia, Maryland, Montana, Nevada, New Jersey, North Dakota, South Dakota, Utah and Washington).
- 15 states generally allow delegation of tasks to unlicensed assisting personnel (Alabama, Alaska, Illinois, Maine, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Mississippi, New Hampshire, Ohio, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas and Virginia). Mississippi's statutes and rules are silent on the matter; however, the State's Attorney General issued an Opinion stating that general delegation of tasks to unlicensed assisting personnel is permitted.
- Of those states that allow general delegation of tasks to unlicensed assisting personnel under the relevant statutes, four states also provide a comprehensive list or guidelines of services that can be delegated (New Hampshire, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island and Washington).
- 14 states exempt unlicensed assisting personnel from licensure requirements or unauthorized practice prohibitions during performance of delegated tasks (Colorado, Hawaii, Idaho, Indiana, Kansas, Louisiana, New Mexico, North Carolina, Oklahoma, Oregon, Rhode Island, Tennessee, Utah and Wisconsin).

- Nine states are silent as to the delegation authority that a licensed physician may have (Connecticut, Delaware, Iowa, Nebraska, New York, Vermont, West Virginia and Wyoming).
- One state (New York) has very limited scope of delegation authority to medical assistants, if any. Medical assistants have struggled to have a scope of practice recognized that matches their training and skill.

Non-credentialed medical assistants are not permitted to enter orders for meaningful use calculation purposes. It applies to entry of orders under Stage 1 as well as Stage 2 (and, eventually, Stage 3) of the Incentive Programs. “Credentialing for a medical assistant must come from an organization other than the organization employing the medical assistant,” dictates CMS.
- Can MAs triage calls? (“Triage calls”); and

- Six states specifically allow unlicensed personnel to triage calls (Arizona, Florida, Maryland, New Hampshire, Pennsylvania, Washington). For instance, New Hampshire allows for unlicensed personnel to do telephone screening , data collection and symptom documentation.
- Can MAs follow standing orders? (“Standing orders”).
  - Two states expressly recognize general delegation of duties to unlicensed assisting personnel via standing orders (California, Illinois). For instance, Illinois statute provides that “delegation ... may be authorized by any means, including, but not limited to, oral, written, electronic, standing orders, protocols, guidelines, or verbal orders.”
