Messrs. Feeney, Crighton and Welch, Ms. Gobi, Mr. Fattman, Ms. L'Italien, Messrs. O'Connor, Moore, Cyr and Collins moved that the proposed new text be amended by inserting after section 22, the following section:-

309

"SECTION 23. (a) Words used in this section shall have the same meanings as those provided in chapter 32 of the General Laws unless the context clearly requires otherwise; provided, however, that 'trial court reporter' shall mean the full-time position of court reporter in the trial court of the commonwealth.

(b) Notwithstanding chapter 32 of the General Laws or any other general or special law to the contrary, the state board of retirement shall establish and implement a retirement incentive program for trial court reporters as set out in this section.

An individual shall be eligible for the trial court reporter retirement incentive program if the individual is: (i) employed as a trial court reporter or on an authorized leave of absence from the position of trial court reporter, as certified by the trial court to the state retirement board and as of the effective date of this section and through the date of retirement established in subsection (c); (ii) a member in service of the state employees' retirement system pursuant to clause (i) of paragraph (a) of subdivision (1) of section 3 of chapter 32 of the General Laws as of the effective date of this section; (iii) classified in Group 1 of the state employees' retirement system pursuant to paragraph (g) of subdivision (2) of said section 3 of said chapter 32 as of the effective date of this section; (iv) eligible to either: (A) receive a superannuation retirement allowance pursuant to subdivision (1) of section 5 of said chapter 32 or subdivision (1) of section 10 of said chapter 32 as of the date of retirement established in said subsection (c); or (B) would be eligible for such retirement allowance as of the date of retirement established in said subsection (c) if the incentive is awarded; (v) not already retired under said chapter 32 or otherwise separated from service from employment with the commonwealth; and (vi) file a timely correctly completed application with the board pursuant to said subsection (c).

A trial court reporter shall not be eligible to receive any benefit from the trial court reporter retirement incentive program if the trial court reporter: (i) receives compensation funded from a capital appropriation, federal grant or trust as each is defined in section 1 of chapter 29 of the General Laws as of the filing date for the application pursuant to subsection (c); (ii) is a member of the state employees' retirement system who, as of the effective date of this section, is not contributing to the retirement system or has not completed reinstatement pursuant to section 105 of said chapter 32.

A trial court reporter's eligibility for the trial court reporter retirement incentive program under this section, and determinations including, but not limited to, creditable service, the amount of retirement allowance, group classification and the processing of applications filed shall be made by the state board of retirement.

A trial court reporter eligible under this section, shall not utilize the spousal benefit established in section 322 of chapter 149 of the acts of 2004 in combination with the benefit options provided in subsection (d).

(c) Notwithstanding section 5 of chapter 32 of the General Laws, the state board of retirement shall receive an eligible trial court reporter's application for retirement not later than June 1, 2018 in order for the trial court reporter to be eligible to receive the retirement benefit provided in this section. The retirement date requested in an eligible trial court reporter's application shall be June 30, 2018. The application for retirement may be delivered to the board in person, by mail or in any other manner as the board may approve, including by electronic means. The application of the retirement incentive provided by this section shall not be deferred to a later date. Once the effective date of a trial court reporter's retirement has occurred, an employee qualifying under this section shall not withdraw the trial court reporter's retirement application that has been filed and shall not be authorized to make any changes to the retirement application or option selection unless otherwise authorized by the state board of retirement.

(d) The state board of retirement shall credit a trial court reporter with an additional retirement benefit pursuant to this section if a trial court reporter otherwise meets the requirements of the program. Each trial court reporter shall request to receive a combination of years of creditable service and years of age, in full-year increments; provided, however, that the sum of the years of creditable service and years of age shall not be greater than 5 years, as determined by the state retirement board, to determine the trial court reporter's superannuation retirement allowance pursuant to paragraph (a) of subdivision (2) of section 5 of chapter 32 of the General Laws.

Notwithstanding the credit, the total normal yearly amount of the retirement allowance, as determined pursuant to said section 5 of said chapter 32, of a trial court reporter who retires and receives the retirement incentive program benefit shall not exceed $\frac{4}{5}$ of the average annual rate of the trial court reporter's regular compensation as determined by section 5 of said chapter 32.

A trial court reporter shall not utilize the incentive program under this section to qualify for any other rights or benefits pursuant to chapter 32 of the General Laws. A trial court reporter that retires and receives an additional retirement benefit pursuant to this section shall be considered retired for superannuation pursuant to said chapter 32 and shall be subject to said chapter 32. A married trial court reporter who retires and receives an additional benefit pursuant to this section shall be subject to the requirements of the second paragraph of subdivision (1) of section 12 of said chapter 32.

Notwithstanding paragraph (a) of subdivision (2) of section 5 of chapter 32 of the General Laws, an eligible trial court reporter retiring under the trial court reporter retirement incentive program who has served in more than 1 group shall receive a retirement allowance as if the trial court reporter served only as a Group 1 employee for the entire length of state service and shall not receive a retirement allowance consisting of prorated benefits based upon the percentage of total years of service that the trial court reporter rendered in each group.

Paragraph (c) of subdivision (8) of section 3 of chapter 32 of the General Laws shall apply to the creditable service added and the increased retirement allowances derived as a result of the additional years of service or age provided by this section.

(e) If requested, the state board of retirement shall provide retirement counseling to trial court reporters who apply to retire under the trial court reporter retirement incentive program. Counseling by the board shall include, but not be limited to: (i) a full explanation of the retirement benefits provided by the trial court reporter retirement incentive program; (ii) a comparison of the expected lifetime retirement benefits payable to a trial court reporter under the retirement incentive program and pursuant to chapter 32 of the General Laws; (iii) an explanation of the election of a retirement option pursuant to section 12 of said chapter 32; (iv) restrictions on employment after retirement through the trial court reporter retirement incentive program; (v) laws relative to the payment of cost-of-living adjustments to the retirement allowance; and (vi) the effect of federal and state taxation on retirement income. The group insurance commission shall provide counseling regarding the provision of health care benefits pursuant to chapter 32A of the General Laws. Each trial court reporter shall sign a statement that the trial court reporter has received counseling or elected not to receive counseling prior to the approval by the board of the trial court reporter's application for superannuation benefits and the additional benefit provided under this section.

(f) Pursuant to section 98 of chapter 32 of the General Laws, the state treasurer through the state retirement board may make advance payments in an amount not to exceed 50 per cent of the initial benefit payment of retirement allowance actually due and under any terms and conditions the state board of retirement may prescribe to a trial court reporter who is eligible for retirement under the retirement incentive program and who does not receive a retirement allowance within 90 days after the effective date of retirement. Section 91 of said chapter 32 shall not apply for calendar year 2018 to any previously retired trial court reporters of the state board of retirement engaged to implement this section.

The board shall deny an application for the retirement incentive program under this section by a trial court reporter who belongs to a bargaining unit for which a collective bargaining agreement inconsistent with this section is in effect at the time of the application unless the employee organization representing the trial court reporter has filed with the board and the secretary of administration and finance a statement waiving any inconsistent provisions of the agreement on behalf of all members of the bargaining unit who file applications for the retirement incentive program under this section.

(h)(1) Notwithstanding section 91 of chapter 32 of the General Laws, a trial court reporter retired under this section shall not be reemployed in the service of the commonwealth, whether as a consultant, an independent contractor or a person whose regular duties require time devoted to the service of the commonwealth, within 30 days after the date of their retirement. A member who retired under the trial court reporter retirement incentive program shall be eligible for reinstatement under section 105 of said chapter 32.

(g) Notwithstanding any general or special law or collective bargaining agreement or other employment contract to the contrary and in consideration of the benefits conferred in this section, a trial court reporter who elects to retire under this section and is eligible to receive a payment in lieu of accrued vacation time, unused sick leave or other benefit under the collective bargaining agreement or other employment contract shall receive payment by September 1, 2018. A trial court reporter who elects to retire under this section shall sign a statement that the trial court reporter has agreed to receive the payment according to the schedule outlined in this section prior to the approval of the trial court reporter's application for superannuation benefits and the additional benefit provided by this section by the state board of retirement.

(2) If a trial court reporter approved for the trial court reporter retirement incentive program under this section qualifies for a subsequent retirement under section 105 of chapter 32 of the General Laws, the additional combination of years of creditable service and years of age applied herein shall not be applied in any subsequent retirement calculation pursuant to said section 105 of said chapter 32.

(i) Notwithstanding this section, an otherwise eligible trial court reporter may, in the alternative, apply to retire pursuant to section 5 or section 10 of chapter 32 of the General Laws without the benefit of the trial court reporter retirement incentive program; provided, however, that application for such retirement shall be made under subsection (c).

(j) The public employee retirement administration commission shall conduct an actuarial analysis of the impact to the commonwealth's unfunded pension liability attributable to the retirement incentive provided in this section. The analysis shall be filed with the house and senate committees on ways and means, the executive office for administration and finance and the state retirement board not later than December 31, 2018. The trial court shall be responsible to the state employees' retirement system for funding any additional pension liability attributable to the retirement incentive provided in this section. Funding shall occur pursuant to a schedule established by the actuary and the state retirement board."

The amendment was rejected.

Remarks of Senator President Harriette L. Chandler.

Friends:

Thank you.

You all know me as a woman who values accomplishment over winning, and efficiency over pomp. And as such, I recognize that we have a lot of work yet to do tonight.

That said, I hope you will indulge me as I offer a few words to recognize you, this body, and this moment.

To begin, I would like to thank those of you who have come to the chamber.

Over the past eight months, it has been one of my greatest joys to develop a relationship with Speaker Robert DeLeo and to work closely with the Governor and Lieutenant Governor on behalf of Massachusetts.

I am grateful for your support of the Senate, and for your lifelong friendship.

Tomorrow, I officially step down from the rostrum and the Senate presidency. At that time, I intend to return to my own policy work, much in the profile and manner I maintained throughout my career prior to December.

But when I do so, I return to a body with a newfound perspective and respect for our members and our work.

It is no secret that I carry a deep love and respect for this institution. As one of the oldest legislative bodies in this country, we carry a profound responsibility to serve as a beacon for the world, representing the enduring promise of democracy, and demonstrating the power and freedom provided by a government of the people, for the people.

Throughout this session, in the midst of one of our most trying times, this body showed what it truly is made of.

And when I say this body, I refer to more than just the members---Rather, I refer to the staffers, the professional staff, those who support us and this building behind the scenes each day. Each of you contributed to a productive session, and I am deeply appreciative.

Remarks of Senator
Harriette L.
Chandler.

I step down from this post knowing that we've had a successful session.

Over the past eight months, we have triumphed over those who believe their profit lies in our chaos, and those who attempted to capitalize on a tragic moment for our body.

To those seekers and sowers of discontent, I say to you: before me stands a body that rose above the noise, elevated the conversation, and ignored distractions in the name of the greater good.

Our accomplishments are manifest: We passed landmark criminal justice reform; empowered regional transportation; raised the minimum wage; expanded paid family leave; fought back against net neutrality rollbacks; banned bump stocks; and fought for a cleaner, greener, healthier environment for future generation. We passed automatic voter registration; prevented wage theft, and expanded access to contraception coverage.

In January, I came before you and stated our intention to stand for a set of fundamental ideals. I said we would fight for the future of the Massachusetts family, for economic equity, for vulnerable populations, and for a state that allows all to prosper.

We have done so. And in the midst of a national morass of darkness, we once again have served as a beacon of light for those seeking a progressive future. We have passed vital legislation on behalf of women, immigrants, families, children, and the under-represented.

We have fought for transportation, for housing, and for smart growth. And we continue to fight for improved healthcare and opioid legislation.

As we promised, we stood as a bastion of protection for Massachusetts residents against a federal government focused on tearing each other down rather than raising us all up.

We have accomplished all of that only because of the people in this room.

Indeed, if I had any success as Senate President, it is because my colleagues stepped up, each in your own individual ways over the past eight months to ensure we kept moving.

I'm proud of your resiliency, and your hard work this session.

Thank you. You made my short time in the office a pleasure, and I look forward to continuing our work together.

The truth is, I never asked for this role. I was a reluctant seat holder. But I thoroughly appreciated seeing the Senate from this viewpoint, and learned quite a lot.

One of my greatest lessons over the past eight months has been that, particularly in this body, despite our disagreements, every voice deserves to be heard.

You may have noticed that, on many occasions, I've very literally wanted to make sure people are heard. With that in mind, for one final time, I would like to say: "Members, please subdue your conversation."

You know, I've been asked many times how I feel about the limited time I have in this role. The truth is that this shortened period has given me a degree of freedom that many don't have.

Too often in this building, as we do in life, we get caught up in the stakes of winning and lose sight of actually accomplishing the vital tasks at hand. That is a missed opportunity. "Victory, simply for the sake of achieving it, means nothing," said Al Smith.

As we turn a page, I urge all of us to shift that view: We must be a body of “what can we do?” not “who can we beat?”

In these times, more than ever, we have a solemn calling to do so. Because the people who send us here have businesses to grow, children to raise, loved ones to care for, food to put on the table, dreams to aspire to.

We must persist because, at our best, we are a body that works together to make good on that sacred promise we make with them to make their lives a little bit better - in increments or giant leaps - as we represent their stake in government, and government’s role in society.

The fact is, many out there would have had us just follow the lead of other states. Or to phone it in. Or to quiver under pressure of the federal government.

But we’re from Massachusetts. We don’t wait for someone else to tell us what to do or which direction the wind is blowing or which way the path is going to go.

We set the path. By way of those who settled here thousands of years ago; on the backs of fishermen and laborers and soldiers; the small business owners of Main Street and through the immigrants landing on our hopeful shores this very afternoon, we write the future. And we will always serve as that city on a hill.

I am proud of this transition for many reasons. Today marks the first time in the history of Massachusetts that a legislative body has turned from a woman to a woman as its leader.

And in a time when our NASTY Women bill, repealing archaic anti-women statutes, went from punch line to national story for its timeliness, I think it’s worth pausing to celebrate just how momentous this transition is.

When I was young, women didn’t do things like this. They didn’t become Senate Presidents...or Senators...or, for that matter, go to graduate school. I was an anomaly then. I was told, repeatedly, to stay home with the children, rather than to further my career or academic interests.

“Women don’t do that,” they said.

And the sexism continued as I aged---“Shouldn’t she just retire?” How many men get asked the same thing?

Yet here I am.

If I have one regret as I close my term, it is that the opportunities to lead in government weren’t readily apparent or modeled to me as a young woman.

At the same time, what I’m proudest of as I turn this gavel over to my friend Karen Spilka is that we women in power are not anomalies any more. We’re not to be gawked at, laughed at, or trifled with. We’re not tokens or oddities or sideshows.

We are entering an age when the power of women is no longer a question, but an answer to the problems plaguing our world.

We have seen evidence of this throughout the past eight months.

On so many issues, housing...criminal justice...reproductive rights, the advocacy that influenced us was led by young women looking to change the world.

At no time was that more true than during the debate over ERPO. Our chambers were filled with the next generation of leaders, many of them young women, standing up to ensure that Massachusetts continues to lead the nation in gun laws. The landmark legislation would not have passed without them.

To those young women at home; to the pages and staffers in the chamber tonight...I urge you to keep striving.

I am encouraged by them and by the next generation of leaders as a whole---which is why I am so proud that today, on my final day, we are enacting landmark civics legislation providing quality experiential civic learning to every student in this great Commonwealth. With this law, every child will experience the power government can have in our lives.

We in Massachusetts, as in the country, now confront an ever-changing face of the future. Those who lead us through to the other side, I believe, will come more from the ranks of our children and grandchildren's classrooms than from the ranks of this room.

To finish this evening, I have a list of thank yous.

First, my family. My three children, including my oldest son and his children, who are with us here today, as well as my beloved husband of 59 years who has been my partner and my source of strength and encouragement.

This would have been impossible without you.

Thank you to our building and maintenance crew.

To the LIS team: Thank you.

Thank you to Billy Rinaldi and the business office.

Thank you to the HR team, Cathy Flewelling, Beth Zodda, and Kathleen Buckley.

To the pages and Court Officers who keep this place running: Thank you.

And thank you to the rangers who protect us each day.

Please, a round of applause.

I would like to thank Clerk William Welch and his team: Michael Hurley, Stacey LeMay, Andrea Crighton, Tom Simeone and everyone in the office.

Jennifer Miller, and our dedicated Senate Counsel staff: Brandon Rios, John Moreschi and Amy Nable, Cookie, and the rest of the staff: Thank you

I would also like to thank Natasha Perez, Rosalie DeCosta, and Molly Cahill for their professionalism and dedication to ensuring that the Senate continued operating smoothly at all times.

And as I said when we wrapped up the budget session, when I inherited this office, I also inherited the most talented group of staffers possible. They have handled exceptionally challenging situations with grace, professionalism, and brilliance. Together with my team from the Majority Leader's office, and a few people we brought in, I feel absolutely blessed to be surrounded by some of the best minds in government, dedicated to ensuring that the Senate operates at its highest level, each day.

Tonight, I would like to end my speech by thanking all who served in the Senate President's office since December. In no particular order:

Stephen Maher

Suzanne Morrison

Joe Beebe

DJ Napolitano

Megan Montgomery

Margaret Randall

Zoe Magid

Ali Hart

Kevin Connor

Scott Zoback

Jim DiTullio

Anna Freedman

Bryan Barash

Mark Dailey

David Sullivan

And lastly, my incomparable Chief of Staff, Laura Paladino. I hired Laura as a page, and these past eight months, I've seen her consistently meet and rise above every challenge thrown her way with a grace and poise beyond her years. No one in politics is irreplaceable, but Laura comes as close as possible. She is an asset to this building, and I believe she deserves a special round of applause.

Now, after a bit more work tonight, I return to the membership of this body with a unique perspective on the Senate...on its promise and its blemishes alike.

I carry with me that vital perspective as I return to the daily work of pushing my own legislation, and furthering our collective work...I hope to be a resource to all of you as we continue towards our shared goals.

In January, I quoted Maria Stewart, one of our nation's early pioneers for equality, who said, "Talk, without effort, is nothing." Those words ring even more true to me today than in January.

History will judge us not on the words uttered on this floor, but on the dedication we show to bettering the lives of those who have entrusted these seats to us.

I hope that at this point, my views are clear: The need for public service persists. Our work today is history tomorrow. And though we may quarrel with each other, we continue to be unified with an idealistic belief that we can change lives, change Massachusetts, and change the world for the better.

It must never be about us.

Thank you for standing with me.

Thank you for standing for Massachusetts.

And thank you for placing your faith in me to lead this body at a dark moment. It is my only hope that I lived up to your expectations, and that I leave the Senate on firm ground to be a beacon of light into the future.

As we go forward, maintain belief in the greatness of Massachusetts, and in each other, to make it an ever greater Commonwealth.

With that, there is still legislating to be done tonight, so I bring these comments to a close, in much the way I did at the beginning of my time in January:

Let's get back to work.

Order Adopted.

On motion of Ms. Creem,--

Ordered, That when the Senate adjourns today, it adjourn to meet again Tuesday at one o'clock P.M., in a full formal session without a calendar.

Time of meeting.

Moment of Silence.

At the request of the President, the members, guests and staff stood in a moment of silence and reflection to the memory of Stephen Mindich.

Moment of silence.

Adjourn In Memory of Stephen Mindich.

The Senator from the Cape and Islands, Mr. Cyr, and the Senator from Middlesex and Norfolk, Ms. Creem, moves that when the Senate adjourns today, it do so in the memory of Stephen Mindich of Newton and Provincetown.

Mr. Cyr and Ms. Creem in the Chair, Mr. Mindich was a cultural icon whose contributions to our Commonwealth through journalism, social advocacy, and the arts are innumerable. After a four-year battle with pancreatic cancer, Mr. Mindich passed away on May 23, 2018 at the age of 74.

The son of a Ukrainian migrant, Stephen was born and raised in New York City, where he worked at his father's dry-cleaning business before pursuing a degree from the Boston University School of Theater and the College of Communications. Soon after graduating, Stephen pursued a career in journalism and would eventually become a pioneer of Boston's alternative news media. He began as the first-ever arts and entertainment critic at WBUR-FM and then went on to contribute to Boston After Dark, a small but poignant weekly publication. By 1972 he bought Boston After Dark and then the Cambridge Phoenix. He opted to merge the two publications, creating the Boston Phoenix, an alternative news source that pushed the boundaries of entertainment, social, and political coverage. A number of talented journalists jumpstarted their careers writing for the Boston Phoenix, and the publication won many awards, including a Pulitzer Prize, over the years. Just two years ago, Stephen Mindich was inducted into the New England Newspaper Hall of Fame for having shaped "the course of New England media, culture, politics, and civic life."

A resident of both Newton and Provincetown, Mr. Mindich also had a tremendous impact on the Outer Cape Cod community. Working with a group that shared his passion for the arts, Mr. Mindich co-founded the Provincetown International Film Festival, which is run successfully to this day and promotes Stephen's spirit by introducing the world to talented artists who compel us to think thoughtfully about social and political pitfalls through their work. He also supported the arts through his contributions to the Provincetown Fine Arts Work Center, where he was a board member who played a pivotal role in revitalizing the center's facility and forging its connection with Cuban artists. Stephen loved Provincetown and everything it represented as a community that celebrates the arts through truth, openness, and love. He did everything in his power to make sure the arts flourished in this cultural center of our Commonwealth.

Stephen Mindich is survived by his wife, the Honorable Maria Lopez, his son, Bradley Mindich, brother, Bruce Mindich, two grandsons, two stepsons, and three-grandchildren. May we take the time today to reflect on the remarkable life of Stephen Mindich, whose contributions to journalism, the arts, and to social justice will remain as reminders to us all of the importance of living an impactful and full life.

The President in the Chair, accordingly, as a mark of respect in memory of Stephen Mindich, at twelve minutes past ten o'clock P.M., on motion of Mr. Rush, the Senate adjourned to meet again on Thursday next at one o'clock P.M.
