

TRANS/NONBINARY & MAKING SPICY CONTENT?

We interviewed 18 trans/nonbinary young adults who create sexual content to share or sell on platforms like OnlyFans and ManyVids.

Here's some of their advice for other creators.

1. FOLLOW YOUR GUT

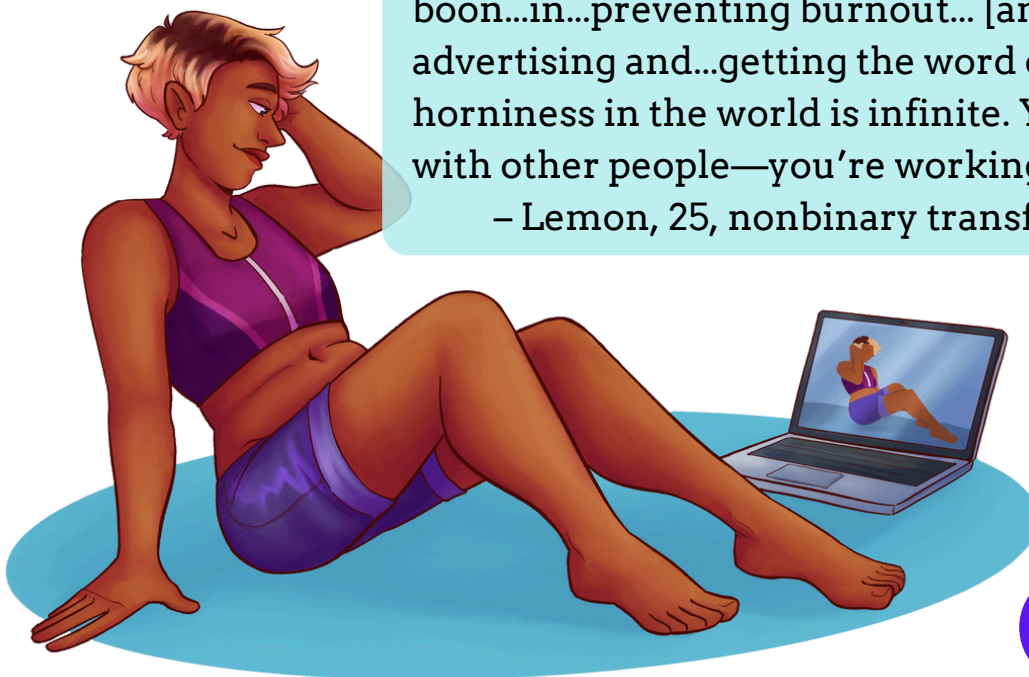

"...Make whatever feels good to [you], and... listen to your gut... [S]tay true to...what you believe in and how you want to be perceived and what you want your image to look like."

– Pecan, 23, transmasculine

2. LEAN ON YOUR COMMUNITY

"Your community's going to be your biggest boon...in...preventing burnout... [and in helping with] advertising and...getting the word out... The amount of horniness in the world is infinite. You're not competing with other people—you're working with them."

– Lemon, 25, nonbinary transfemme

3. CONSIDER PRIVACY

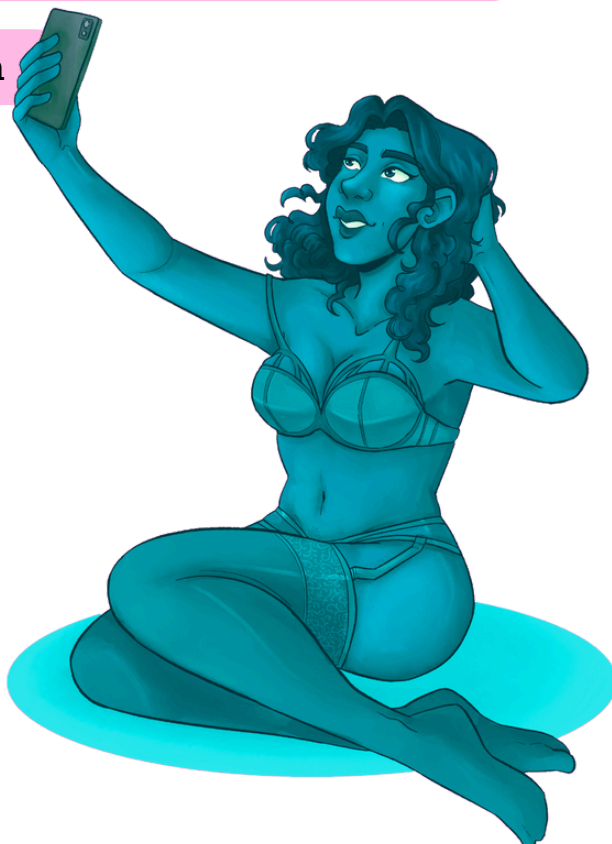

"Be careful about things that are in the backgrounds of your pictures...and videos... the little details that could tip somebody off as to where or who you are..."

– Alex, 21, trans man

4. ENJOY YOURSELF!

"[Every kind of porn has] has already been made. So what people care about more is just [seeing] you having fun... they'd be much more happy watching you have fun than you doing a scene that they've already seen."

– Evelyn, 29, trans woman
