STARTUP LAW CLINIC

Fellows will provide strategic legal and business advice to startups, assisting student entrepreneurs in the MIT and BU communities with the corporate, transactional, and intellectual property issues that arise in the process of turning their ideas into operating businesses. Working under the guidance of the clinic directors, the Fellows will manage each step of the client relationship, from the initial intake interview through the completion of the engagement.

TECHNOLOGY LAW CLINIC

Fellows will provide legal assistance to students at MIT and BU related to their innovation-related academic and extracurricular activities. The clinic represents students on legal matters related to technology and innovation development, including intellectual property, data privacy, cybersecurity, and media law. Clients work in fields such as artificial intelligence, Internet platforms, drones and robotics, and novel forms of technology research, ventures, and advocacy. Fellows will work under the guidance of the clinic's faculty and manage the work related the clinic's clients over the summer.

Total compensation for the 10-week summer programs will be $6,650. At this point, whether the summer clinic work is conducted in person or remotely will likely depend on the teaching models in place at BU and MIT for the summer. Current 1Ls and 2Ls are welcome to apply.

Matthew Z. Gomes Fellowships are open to students who: have demonstrated experience in or commitment to working with historically underserved or underprivileged populations; are the first generation in one's family to attend law school; are socioeconomically disadvantaged; and/or have overcome substantial educational or economic obstacles or personal adversity. The Matthew Z. Gomes Fellowships are in addition to our other Summer Fellow positions.*
