

Kids grow up fast!

Are you the parent of a teen or young adult with a developmental disability?

It might feel like yesterday that your son or daughter was little. But, now you are thinking about what your son or daughter will do as an adult.

What do you know now that you wish you knew when your child was 2 or 3 years old? Do you have ideas for parents who are just starting their journey? We would like to hear about your ideas!

The PREPARED study is looking for parents of youth ages 14-22 with developmental disabilities who participated in early intervention.

We want to talk with all parents, including parents who:

- Have a high school education or less
- Identify as a minority
- Speak English as a second language

PREPARED:

Parents Responding,
Engaging & Participating for new Environments for children with Disabilities

You will meet with other parents to share your ideas. Parents will receive a $15 gift card as a “thank you”.
